Not illustrated. 1916 Excerpt: .to act as the presiding officer of such a gathering or to take part on the program. Whoever can not express himself on such occasions must be content to be a mere listener, and listening is rarely so interesting and beneficial as taking part in a discussion. Besides, many valuable ideas are lost to the public through the inability of men to think and speak standing. Public speaking is of use to the man or woman who aspires to take part in public affairs. Indeed, to such a one it is indispensable. The lawyer cannot get along without it, and the greater ability he has in this line the more successful he will be. The physician who aims to be more than a mere practitioner, who wishes to be of general service in his community, particularly in a Mor-. mon community, will have abundant use for this art. Every government requires officers to carry it on-- presidents, governors, legislators, judges, and manipulators of political parties--all of whom rise into power largely through the use of public speech. And how could one ever hope to be a successful teacher without the ability to think clearly, to arrange his thoughts systematically, and to put these ideas effectively, before an audience? In a democracy like ours, where there are great reforms to champion and public offices to hold, public address is one of the surest and quickest ways to recognition and influence. But especially is this art of practical service...
