Torrey House Press, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 200 x 134 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. Steven Pavlos Holmes offers a rich, refreshing, and much-needed collection of personal responses to climate change. Though the volume is slender, its selections of poetry and prose written over the past ten years by a variety of mostly lesser-known authors provide a tonal and emotional diversity that makes the collection accessible. I used the book to great success in a first-year humanities seminar on climate change. Stephen Siperstein, ISLE One puts down this book with a real sense of hope for the future. It is also a book worth dipping into from time to time, yielding enough variety to sustain a rereading, enough urgency in its many voices to remind us why we need to act, and enough wisdom in its insights to persuade us that we can each make a difference. GREEN LETTERS: STUDIES IN ECOCRITICISM Amidst the current deluge of statistics about global warming, this book provides a refreshing look at how individuals are affected. This is a beautiful book to keep near, open at random, and share the words of gifted writers as they prepare for the coming changes. PUBLISHERS WEEKLY Holmes, a scholar in environmental humanities, has assembled a rich, varied collection of personal accounts and poems. An artistic and intimate approach to the problem that humanizes our concerns. BOOKLIST Steven Holmes has gathered compelling testimonies about the ways our earthly home is changing in the short space of our own lifetimes. They beg us to pay attention and act. We are wise to heed these passionate voices. Chip Ward, author of Hope's Horizon These earnest and heartfelt poems, essays, and imaginings change our discourse from data to personal testimony, channeling care and concern. Maybe, just maybe, these authors...
