Excerpt: . . . appeared to be aware that there were such viscera as the heart, lungs, and liver, but had no notion of their real situation, or, like the Mock Doctor in Moliere, placed them on the wrong sides of the body. The Chinese do not even know the distinction between arteries and veins, and not a syllable of the function of the lungs in oxygenizing the blood, and getting rid of its superfluous carbon. Of the existence of certain sympathies between the different viscera, and of derangement being communicated to one by the disorders of another, they might seem to have some glimmering, and to express it strangely by calling the heart the husband, and the lungsthe wife, and c. --Chinese, vol. ii. p. 284. same earnestness with which you have often solicited the public; answer me, I say, at once, without having recourse to your physical dictionary, which of those...
