Not illustrated. 1890 Excerpt: .moraines and kames our great moraines have almost invariably beyond their lines, in the direction towards which the ice moved, extensive accumulations of detrital matter in the form of plains or gently inclined surfaces sloping away from the morainal front. To this class of deposits I have applied the term frontal apron. This plain region has normally a width of from one to six miles and surface very nearly horizontal. Most commonly this surface inclines gently backward towards the moraine for the distance of a mile or more from the front. Then from indistinct summits it declines at the rate of three or four feet to the mile away from the morainal accumulation. I have no question that the greater part if not the whole of these deposits were formed beneath the surface of a water area. Along the coast it is evident that this water...
